Karl and Jenny Marx met in 1843, and their love for each other was immediate and passionate. They married a year later, and their relationship was to endure through all the hardships and challenges of their lives together.

The letters in True Love Marx reveal the deep love and affection that Karl and Jenny had for each other. They also provide insights into their political and intellectual lives, and their hopes and dreams for the future.

One of the most touching letters in the collection is one that Karl wrote to Jenny in 1867, after she had given birth to their sixth child. In the letter, Karl expresses his love and gratitude for Jenny, and his hopes for their future together.

"My dearest Jenny," he wrote, "I cannot tell you how much I love you. You are my everything. I am so grateful for you, and for our children. I know that our lives have been difficult, but I would not trade them for anything. I love you more than words can say."

True Love Marx is a beautiful and moving collection of letters that provide a unique glimpse into the lives and relationship of Karl and Jenny Marx. These letters are a testament to the power of love, and to the enduring legacy of the greatest revolutionary couple in history.
