At first, Emily dismisses the stalker as a harmless nuisance. But as his behavior becomes more and more erratic, she begins to fear for her safety. She calls the police, but they dismiss her concerns, saying that there's not enough evidence to investigate.

Emily is left feeling helpless and alone. She doesn't know who to turn to, and she's afraid that if she doesn't do something, she'll end up becoming another victim of a violent crime.

Desperate, Emily decides to take matters into her own hands. She starts following her stalker, hoping to gather evidence that she can use to get the police to take her seriously. But as she gets closer to the truth, she realizes that she's in over her head.

The stalker is more dangerous than she ever imagined, and he's not going to let her go without a fight. Emily must use all of her wits and strength to survive, and she must race against time to stop the stalker before he claims another victim.

"You've Gone Too Far This Time, Sir" is a fast-paced, suspenseful thriller that will keep you guessing until the very end. Emily is a strong and resourceful heroine, and her journey is one that will resonate with readers of all ages.

If you're looking for a novel that will keep you on the edge of your seat, then "You've Gone Too Far This Time, Sir" is the perfect book for you.

Here is an excerpt from the book:

Emily's heart pounded in her chest as she ran through the dark, deserted streets. She could hear footsteps behind her, and she knew that she couldn't keep running forever. She had to find a place to hide.

She spotted a small, dark alleyway and ducked inside. She pressed herself against the wall and tried to catch her breath. She could still hear the footsteps, and she knew that her stalker was closing in.

She looked around frantically, searching for a way out. She saw a fire escape at the end of the alleyway, and she knew that that was her only chance. She ran towards the fire escape and climbed up the ladder.

She reached the roof and looked around. The city was spread out before her, but she didn't have time to admire the view. She could see her stalker running towards the building, and she knew that she had to get away.

She ran across the roof and jumped over to the next building. She kept running until she couldn't hear her stalker's footsteps anymore.

Finally, she stopped and leaned against a wall, trying to catch her breath. She was safe for now, but she knew that her stalker wouldn't give up. She had to find a way to stop him, before it was too late.
